36.1 · Guide, Discipline, Follow · Guide, Lead

to guide, to direct, to lead to so influence others as to cause them to follow a recommended course of action In some languages it is difficult to distinguish readily between expressions for ‘leading’ and those which refer to ‘ruling’ or ‘governing,’ but it is important to try to distinguish clearly between these two different sets of interpersonal relations. In some languages, the concept of ‘leading’ can be expressed by ‘showing how to’ or ‘demonstrating how one ought to.’ In other languages it is possible to speak of ‘leading’ as simply ‘going ahead of,’ but too often such an expression may designate only ‘a scout’ who goes ahead to see whether things are safe, or it may refer only to a person who insists on his prerogative as the most distinguished person in a group.

ἡλικία (G2244)

noun, f. | -ας | ἡλίκος

67.151 · Time · Indefinite Units of Time: Age, Lifetime, Interval, Period

span of life, lifetime, age the period of time when a person is alive In MAT 6:27 ἡλικία may also denote height (see 81.4). If one understands ἡλικία in MAT 6:27 as time, then obviously some adjustment needs to be made to the meaning of πῆχυς ‘cubit’ (81.25). For many languages the most appropriate term is one which means ‘day,’ but it would also be possible to use some other unit of length if this would clearly imply an impossibility.

MAT 6:27 · LUK 12:25

67.156 · Time · Indefinite Units of Time: Age, Lifetime, Interval, Period

prime, of age, mature the period of life when one is mature and at one’s prime¹ Normally the phrase παρὰ καιρὸν ἡλικίας (HEB 11:11) would refer to a woman beyond menopause.

1.28 · Geographical Objects and Features · Heavenly Bodies

the sun the large celestial body that gives warmth and light to earth in the daytime Translators have relatively few difficulties in obtaining a satisfactory term for the sun, though there may be a tendency in some languages to add some kind of honorific title to the word, for example, 'our father the sun.' Translators' problems occur, however, with verbs describing the action or effect of the sun. For example, in MAT 13:6, instead of speaking of 'the sun rising,' it may be more satisfactory to speak of 'the sun shining' or, in this particular context, possibly 'when the sun was overhead' or 'by the time the sun had reached the sky.' In MRK 13:24 one can perhaps best render the meaning as 'the sun will no longer shine' or '... will cease shining.'

time, period an indefinite unit of time (whether grammatically singular or plural), but not particularly long (note the contrast with αἰών[a] ‘age,’ 67.143, and γενεά[d] ‘age,’ 67.144) In a number of languages there is no specific term such as ‘period’ referring to an indefinite extent of time. One can, however, render LUK 1:23 as ‘when he no longer had to serve in the Temple’ or ‘when he had finished the days when he served in the Temple.’

daylight the light of the day in contrast with the darkness of night (see νύξ[b] ‘night,’ 14.59)¹ In order to focus attention upon the beginning of daylight, one may translate LUK 4:42 as ‘when the sun began to shine’ or ‘when the sky began to become light’ or even ‘when it was no longer night.’

In some languages there is no noun for either ‘day’ or ‘daylight,’ but a verb expression may be employed which may be rendered literally as ‘to day’ or ‘to become day.’

¹ ἡμέρα[d] daylight overlaps considerably in meaning with ἡμέρα[b] daylight period (67.178). In LUK 4:42, for example, one could interpret ἡμέρα as a period of time rather than as light associated with daytime. See also 14.59. ² There are no doubt certain subtle differences of meaning in these terms, especially in their connotations, but it is not possible to specify the difference on the basis of existing contexts.
